Resources for Environmental Information and Action Post- Election

The results of the 2016 election have created many uncertainties around the future of many federal environmental policies, job opportunities in the environment and sustainability field, the future of the environmental justice movement, and how to take action. The Tishman Center is compiling a list of resources including on-campus resources at The New School, readings and informational resources, links to various environmental justice organizations' websites, and online petitions and action resources. Help us expand our list of resources! Email tedc@newschool.edu with additional organizations, articles, links, etc.
